Conference Successes

THE limitation of armaments conference is over.

Because it failed to bring about an agreement for the reduction of land armament, airplanes and submarines, because it did not dispose of the most pressing issues in the far east, this is a disposition to discount its achievements. Critics point to the fact that Japan remains in undisputed sway over Manchuria and has armies of occupation there and in Siberia, as evidence that the conference was a failure. And if it had been possible to expect the conference to complete a perfect settlement in the far east, and to dispose of all angles of the armament problem, it would be fair so to regard the result.

But nobody before the conference expected that such an outcome would result. As one looks back over the forecasts of what might be possible, made before the conference assembled, it is apparent that the discussions disposed of an astonishingly large number of most difficult issues. Who was bold enough to predict, before the meeting, that there would be a definite agreement to abstain from capital ship building for ten years, a fixed ratio of capital ships for all the naval powers of the world, a treaty of conference and amity covering the Pacific, a settlement of the Shantung issue and the abandonment of the Anglo-Japanese alliance? He would have been an optimist, indeed, who would risk his reputation as a prophet on such a prediction. And yet, all this has been definitely signed and sealed.

Nor is this all that the conference has accomplished. Perhaps of at least equal significance for the future is that the powers have tried the experiment of getting their feet under the same table and talking over their problems together. The result has been so successful—so satisfactory, it appears, to all concerned as regards those questions disposed of—that one may easily agree with the delegates who at Saturday's closing session proclaimed the gathering as an international precedent of historic importance. It seems not too much to expect that this method of international adjustment, supported by the prestige of the successful experiment just completed, may be used with effect in the near future to dispose of the difficulties which the conference could not handle. There remain, and will always remain, issues between nations that must somehow be composed, either by war or by treaty. In a thorough-going, large-scale way the Washington conference has shown that even problems of the greatest magnitude may be settled by discussion and compromise in a way that leaves the pride, prestige and safety of all parties unimpaired. It would be hard to imagine a better beginning, we think, for the reign of law in the world, or a better preparation of the ground for the organization of the world against war which seems the only certain avenue of permanence for our civilization.

Double for the Money

LAST year was not a good one for business. It was perhaps even less a good year for those idealistic institutions which depend upon public bounty for their existence. Business men found it necessary to count dollars, and when the count was ended in many cases there was but little found available for demands beyond those of mere business existence. So institutions like the Y. W. C. A. faced the necessity of drastic budget curtailment and even with expenses cut to the bone faced very often the prospect of a deficit. Thus it has been with the La Crosse Y. W. C. A. Insofar as it could be done without damage to the essential activities of the institution it has trimmed its sails to fit the winds of the times. But even with this curtailment—and how thoroughgoing the pruning was only those in intimate touch with its affairs really understand—the budget has been insufficient. The association does not want to borrow, nor to trench upon the resources available for its 1922 support to meet the temporary stringency due to passing conditions common to all public and private enterprises. So it offers an entertainment, dedicating to the undertaking the services of some 200 of its members for something over two weeks of hard, steady work. The entertainment will stand upon its merits, we are informed by competent observers, as full value in pleasure for the price of admission. It should be well supported in a community where theatrical fare has been slim this season, due to the unparalleled scarcity of touring companies. And its support should be doubly strengthened by the fact that it marks the courageous effort of the association to earn, by its own work and enterprise, money for a community work of the highest importance which is in straits due to no fault of its own. No one would have criticized the association for begging, in the circumstances. That they have chosen rather to give a full return of amusement for the money, beside the community profit which its activities always return, is a consideration that should enlist the enthusiasm and approval of every citizen.

Ghosts of 1315

THE year 1923 may be "destined to repeat something like the experiences of 1315, the year of the worst and most general harvest failure known in European history." England gets this prophetic warning in the magazine published by the Royal Economic Society of London. The prophet is Sir William Beveridge, famous economist. As far back as two years ago, he began predicting the possibility of "lean years" in 1924, 1925 or 1926. Now he moves the date back a year and points to "1923 as likely to be distinguished by excessive rain, cold and bar harvests in western Europe and to bring high prices and scarcity in 1924."

Beveridge hasn't been consulting a ouija board or clairvoyant. For years he analyzed wheat prices from the year 1500 onward. He found that wheat prices ran in cycles, the peaks recurring at intervals of fifteen and one-third years.

Barring the big war that comes about every fifty years, when the people have saved up enough to finance it, wheat-price peaks are the result of crop shortage, generally due to bad weather. Bad weather, unfavorable to crops, seems to repeat every fifteen and one-third years, almost as accurately and unflinching as the striking of a good clock.

The year 1800 had one of these bad-weather cycles, accompanied by a severe crop failure and famine. Next in line for large-scale disaster is the year 1923, according to Economist Beveridge. He doesn't guarantee his prophecy. What he wants is that farmers and students of economics put their thinking-caps on.

Pharaoh had a dream. Joseph interpreted it correctly. Seven years of plenty were followed by seven lean years. That gave a period of fourteen years, remarkably close to the fifteen and one-third years cycle asserted by Beveridge. During the fat years, Joseph and Pharaoh stored up surplus grain and sold it during the seven years of famine.

Farmers might ponder this: Maybe, at benevolent providence has been swamping us with bumper crops, to enable us to store the surplus for lean years in Europe or even in our own country. "And the famine was over all the face of the earth; and Joseph opened all the store-houses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt. And all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands."

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY
Today is the fourteenth anniversary of the founding of the order of the local Aerie of Eagles. Squares and parades led by broad shouldered braves are to be seen everywhere in La Crosse today, and the usual collector, who makes it a point to be near his friends, the Indians, on allotment day, is also conspicuous. About 250 Indians drew their allotments of $22.82 from Special Agent L. M. Compton and hills aggregating nearly the same amount were presented by collectors for provisions purchased since last allotment day a year ago.

At the monthly meeting of the board of health last night it was decided that the city should supply anti-toxin, a diphtheria cure and preventative, on a non-profit notice day or night. It can be had during the day at the board of health and at night at the police station. It is thought that this supplying of anti-toxin by the city will do much to prevent diphtheria, which is now sometimes neglected on account of the expense and bother of getting the remedy.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

A huge iron pillar weighing 9,000 pounds fell from its position at the scene of the building operations of the new plant of the Quad Brewing company Saturday and just missed killing two men. William Heilenen is filling his large icehouse on the causeway. It is understood that William Doerflinger has closed a deal for the purchase of the stock of a large department store in Minneapolis.

The La Crosse County Soldiers' Relief commission met at the court house yesterday afternoon and heard the requests of old soldiers and their wives for aid. Owing to the cold snap the demand for assistance is greater than it would be otherwise.

George Hewitt of Cherok, Wis., was in the city yesterday to open negotiations for the establishment here of a factory to produce a novelty in the form of an automatic swivel plow, his own invention. Mr. Hewitt plans to organize a company of leading business men through the board of trade.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

J. H. Ness has severed his connection with Shinn's Marble Works at La Crosse and will hereafter be interested in the Gatesville Marble Works. E. B. Rynning is having the interior of his clothing store on Rose street remodeled and refitted. The tower of the new Logan street school house was decorated with a bell yesterday. Rev. Father White of St. Mary's church announced Sunday that church services will hereafter be held at ten o'clock, instead of half past ten on Sundays.

Billy's Car

BY CLARISSA MACKIE

It was at Mrs. Granville's tea that Ann Forrye first met Billy Agnew. Mrs. Granville presented a grave-eyed young man, with a stern, almost fierce, little thin and sun-burned face. Agnew looked at the famous Miss Forrye without curiosity, as if all her millions mattered nothing, although to lovely Ann the name of Agnew suggested dire poverty, a financial crash and broken fortunes, but that must have been a year ago and this young Agnew looked well dressed, prosperous, elegant and as well turned out as any of the other rich young men who had forsaken the outdoors for one of the opening events of the social season.

"I saw you yesterday, Billy," declared Mrs. Granville, as she gave him a cup of tea.

He looked vaguely at her. "I was in so many places yesterday," he apologized.

Polly Granville laughed. "This was at Forty-fifth and Broadway, and a policeman was handing you a little slip—you were in your car."

"Oh, I remember," grinned Billy Agnew.

"You usually remember such things," smiled Ann.

He looked at her casually; then his eyes seemed to dazzle as if the radiance of her smile was too much for him. "I suppose you own a dozen cars," he said blithely.

Ann grew pink. "Merely one," she said, "but very nice."

"Another car?" thought Ann scornfully, "probably worried to death over his debts—racing around in a showy car—"

Some one called Ann out of her reverie, another brought her more tea and cakes and others crowded on Billy Agnew, who presently vanished altogether.

"Billy had to go—has a lot of engagements—but he kept his promise of coming to my tea," said Polly Granville to Ann when the two were alone before a whispering fire in the library.

"Is it a privilege to have him in one's house?" asked Ann lightly, though she was interested in the grave young man.

"I consider it an honor," said Polly earnestly and Ann would not question her further. Some day she would know for herself whether he was a little king, a famous screen star, or a celebrated author.

The next day she lunched at the Arlington and because her own car had broken down she sent for a taxi-cab. One of the hotel's fleet of hand-some dark blue cars awaited her. As it rolled up Park avenue toward home she happened to glimpse the driver.

It was Billy Agnew!

This was his car? A taxi-cab driver—and he had appeared at Polly Granville's tea—was it one of Polly's tricks? But so many people had recognized him—and they appeared to like him. He was likable, too, so much like the lover that Ann Forrye, a "poor little girl," had always dreamed would appear some day, that she had measured other men by his standard and found them wanting.

When they stopped at Mrs. Granville's house the driver stepped down and opened the door. Ann alighted like a small haughty princess, and looked the man full in the face—and it was Agnew, though his face was expressionless, his eyes vague and unseeing.

She did not offer to pay him. She merely smiled and said sweetly, "Thank you so much, Mr. Agnew!" and she was rewarded by the red that stained his face.

"He is not quite a man of stone," she commented as she drank a cup of tea with her hostess.

"And so he drove you home, Ann Forrye, daughter of a millionaire," mused Polly.

"Don't be melodramatic," chided Ann. "I am wondering why the man does drive a taxi—I must be embarrassing for his friends."

"Shaw! Ann, don't you know that he does it because he needs the money? When his father was ruined and died suddenly, do you know that the insurance was the only thing left after everything else was sold? Billy, an only son, his mother is dead, his cousins were frantic because he might disinherit them—but his true blood—his studying nights to finish his law course. Some day it will be good-by to the car, though the dealers he will always keep it. Now, do you dislike him?"

ONE REEL YARNS

TWO OF THEM

Jennie tossed up her head and looked laughingly at the newcomer. "Hello, grandma," she greeted. "How did you get in?"

"William Goat, Esquire, didn't lose his temper. He merely looked bored. 'Just because I've a beard,' he said. 'Is no sign I'm an old fossil.'"

"Listen to grandma talk!" laughed Jennie, as all the rest of the members of the board of directors gathered around to listen silently to the conversation.

"You stop calling me grandma," said William, becoming a little irritated. "You just get me mad once, and you'll find out how spry I am, soon enough. You can make fun of my beard all right, but if you weren't a lady I'd tell you how funny you look with those big ears of yours, and how beautiful your voice is—"

Jennie was about to speak her mind when Mr. Jenkins came into the room, and the group trotted off and pretended to be busy doing other things. But the fight had begun. Both Jennie and William were waiting for a chance to get even.

It came that evening when Jennie was changing her hair and William happened to wander past her stall. "What are you doing around here?" said Jennie. "This is private property."

"I'll come in if I like," said William. "No one can order me around like that." He started into the stall, head lowered, just as Jennie's heels shot out.

"I wonder what it is that makes Jennie jump that way," said Mr. Jenkins next day. "I wonder if she had trouble with William. He seems sort of sick. But it can't be that, for they seem very friendly and respectful to each other now."

SHORT TRAMP IN THE WOODS

said Polly, staring into the fire with thoughtful eyes.

It was after midnight, when Polly was awakened from sleep by the sight of her guest in a striped silk kimono, her dark eyes blazing with excitement.

"What is the matter? Burglars?" demanded Mrs. Granville.

"Come into my room, please," requested Ann. When they were there, sitting before the fire, the rich Miss Forrye faced her dearest friend.

"Tell me, Polly, is Billy Agnew the son of that Agnew who was interested in my father's mines?"

"Yes," said Polly blithely.

"Was it something my father did—that ruined John Agnew?"

"I don't think your father knew—he was sick and you were in Europe with him. But your Uncle Martin, who also owned the mines, crowded out Mr. Agnew—I don't understand the details, but it was whispered that your Uncle Martin was to blame."

"And Uncle Martin is dead—and there is no one left to save me," said Ann, slowly. Her face was white and her eyes were drowned in tears.

"I was sure you didn't know," said Polly softly, and remember Billy is a good son, and so proud he won't take a cent from you."

Polly was right—all the great lawyers and judges argued with Billy Agnew to give up his taxicab and take the money that Ann wanted to restore—a half of what she possessed, which was more than was due—but that the cotton center of the United States is rapidly moving south. In 1914, 15,500,000 spindles reported in the northern states as against 12,200,000 in the southern section. At present the report shows 19,500,000 in the northern states, an increase of five percent and 15,500,000 spindles in the south, an increase of over twenty-five percent. If the executives of these northern mills are to keep the textile center of the United States in the northeast they must meet this competition.

"The other factor that is keeping them from full operation are rather heavy imports of both cotton and woolen goods from England. These resources of course depend largely upon the tariff legislation. The safest way to meet this flood of medium priced foreign made goods is to increase efficiency and produce better quality textiles in this country."

"The boot and shoe industry has also turned a corner, and its present activity is improving steadily each month. The shoe men are also facing the same problem as the textile people. The shoe center of the United States is gradually moving westward."

"In 1914 New England produced fifty-three percent of all the shoes made in the United States, this decreased to forty-eight percent in 1919 and the latest figure shows that production of all grades of shoes during November 1921 was only thirty-seven and one-half percent of the total United States production. The western manufacturers have increased their share of total business by producing medium priced, good quality shoes, which can be made and marketed in quantity. I cannot help but feel that this competition with other sections of the country presents one of the most serious problems that the New England manufacturers must produce better goods, lower prices, and more efficient organizations."

"The paper industry is experiencing a marked improvement, but is now in the trough of a slight decline. Heavy stocks are still proving a handicap to this industry. However conditions are a great deal better than they were a year ago, and 1922 should be better than 1921."

"The labor conditions in New England are experiencing a considerable readjustment. Most industries have had at least one cut. The manufacturers are also taking the same view of the situation and are doing everything that is possible to increase the efficiency of their workers. Overhead costs will decline further throughout the year. Reduction of freight rates will greatly help New England manufacturers who have a longer average haul to their consuming markets than any other manufacturing center in the country. All in all most of the individual plants in New England will experience better business in 1922 than in 1921. The amount of improvement depends almost entirely upon the attitude of the men in charge."

"Fundamental conditions have set the stage. New England is ready to come back. It is up to the business men of the northeast to take the aggressive course and go after their individual problems."

"General business throughout the country is still following the hum-drum side movement characteristic of this season of the year. The index of the Babsonchart shows general business seventeen percent below normal, the same as last week. This month ordinarily marks the low point in the seasonal movements. March will reflect a quickening."

REAL WRESTLING LESSON 2

By FRED MEYER
175 Pound and Heavyweight Champion Amateur Wrestler of United States.

While there is no position the wrestler must assume while on the mat trying to throw each other, the one illustrated on the left side of the picture printed here is the most usual. Suppose you and the boy you are wrestling assume this position. Suppose you are the one on top. Your problem is this: "How can I get this fellow off his hands and knees and on his back?" Here's a possible solution:

With your right hand take a firm hold on his right arm near the wrist. Jerk hard on this arm and pull it from under him. If you succeed in doing so, all that remains is for you to take advantage of his bad position and throw him over on his back.

Keep Moving.
But if you are the boy underneath, then what?

The best thing for you to do is keep moving, always watching for an opportunity to get out of your more or less disadvantageous position.

You might try a "side roll," pulling your opponent over with you so that you land on top of him. To do this, reach up with your left hand and take hold of your opponent's left upper arm, which is the arm that circles your waist. When you have a strong hold, suddenly turn your whole body over toward the open, or left side. Your opponent should roll with you. Work fast so that he does not realize what you are doing.

Don't Roll Too Hard
If you have been careful not to make the roll too forceful, you will land on top of your opponent. But the great danger is that you will roll so suddenly and be so anxious that you will get too much force behind the movement and, instead of landing on top yourself you will continue to roll and your opponent will land on top of you. If any one ever tries a roll with you, bear in mind that you can avoid being the under man by adding momentum to the roll so that you come out on top.

The "half nelson" hold, one of the commonest in wrestling, is illustrated on the right side of our picture. You can get the half nelson on your man very easily from the position shown on the left side of the picture.

How to Do It
The idea of the half nelson is to force your opponent's head down and slip under him so that he is forced to roll over. Slip your right arm (supposing that you are in the position shown on the left side of the picture) under the right arm-pit of the boy. Then place your right hand on the back of his head as illustrated in the right-hand sketch. Bear down on his head with your hand, and up with your arm. The leverage thus obtained is great, and unless your opponent's neck is very strong, it will be difficult for him to resist the pressure. His head will go down and he will roll over.

But if any one should try the half nelson on you, remember that you can break away very easily by trying the side roll I described in the first part of this article.

(Next week Mr. Meyer will tell about the "wrestler's bridge" with which you can increase the strength of your neck.)

WORST IS OVER FOR NEW ENGLAND

Roger W. Babson, Famous Statistician
Sees Northeast Ready for Prosperity.

"If you were to study a chart showing the path of a business depression you would note its striking resemblance to a weather map outlining the path of the storm. The present depression was first evident in New England and has spread southward and westward until it centers today in the wheat growing section of the middle west."

"New England being the first to feel the depression, is according to the great basic law of action and reaction, the first to show signs of recovery. From a study of statistics I am convinced that the foundation of fundamental conditions necessary for the period of improvement is practically complete as far as New England is concerned. During this coming year manufacturers, merchants and bankers of this section of the country will struggle with their individual problems. While I do not expect to see anything like a period of prosperity for this section in 1922 I do feel that the worst is over and that a gradual improvement will be evident from now on."

"In activity the more important industries are already reflecting a decided improvement. The textile industry for instance, which is by far the most important in New England, is much busier than a year ago. Activity in cotton goods for instance is eighty percent of normal at present, whereas a year ago it averaged fifty percent. Woolen goods were operating at full capacity during the early fall and are still running near it. A year ago most of the woolen mills in this section were running between thirty-five and forty percent of normal activity. Fundamentally the textile industry has turned its corner and is already in its period of improvement. The executives of New England face two problems. First, the fact that the cotton center of the United States is rapidly moving south. In 1914, 15,500,000 spindles reported in the northern states as against 12,200,000 in the southern section. At present the report shows 19,500,000 in the northern states, an increase of five percent and 15,500,000 spindles in the south, an increase of over twenty-five percent. PROBE OF GASOLINE PRICES STARTED BY BUREAU OF MARKETS

Discrimination in Charges to Retail Dealers is Charged

MADISON, Wis.—Investigation of gasoline prices by the state department of markets was broadened Monday when the O'Neil Oil and Fuel company of Milwaukee, the Hansen Oil company of Burlington, Ill., and the Wilson Oil company of Winona, Minn., were summoned to appear February 21 to answer a complaint of alleged discrimination in charges to retail dealers.

Action against the Standard Oil company of Indiana, operating in Wisconsin, was commenced several weeks ago by the department. Hearing on this case is to be held February 21 at Madison, while hearing on the action started Monday will be held February 21 at Madison.

The Standard Oil company, in its answer to charges of unfair trade practices, made by the department of markets, denied that it is reducing and hindering competition through discriminatory prices. The company, at the hearing Tuesday, will build its case to show that their methods of doing business are fair.

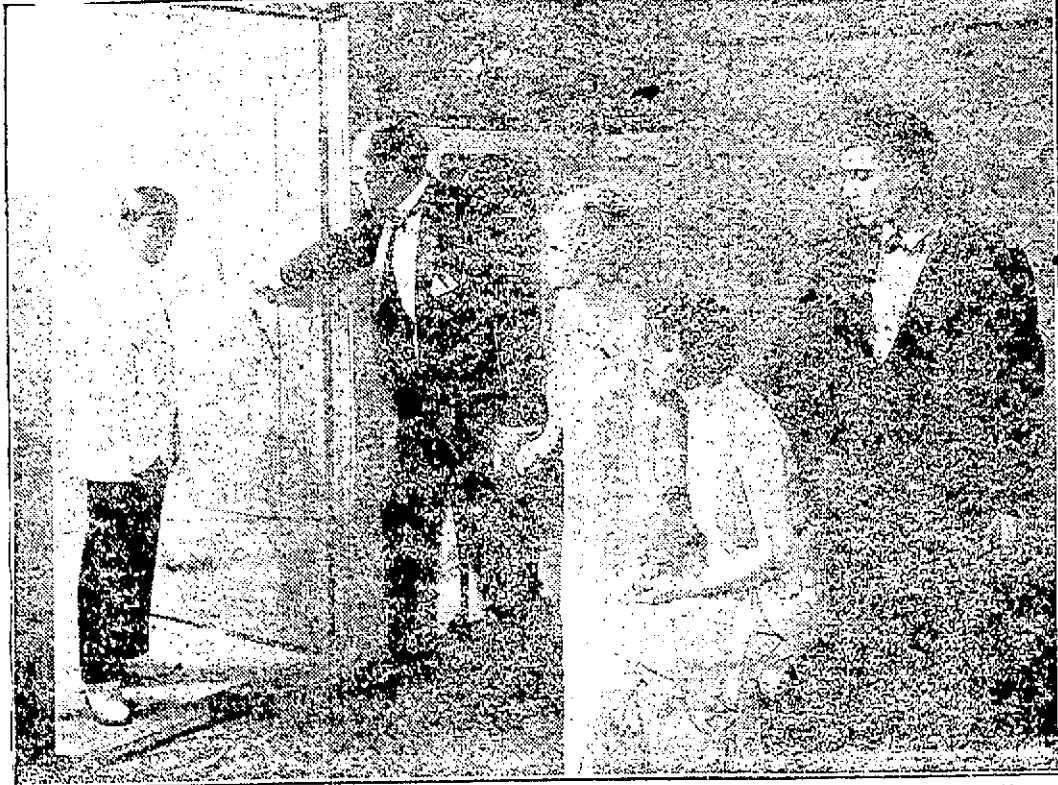

These actions of the marketing department, the first since the grant of trade commission powers by the 1921 legislature, are "a lay the basis for regulating the future acts of the oil corporations," Alvin C. Reis, assistant attorney general attached to the department, said Monday in a statement.

"There can be no offense under the marketing law," he said, "until the department has issued its order declaring the practice to be unjust and demanding its discontinuance. The purpose of the present hearings is to form the basis for an order which later may serve as grounds for court action."

The penalty of $5,000 for violations of provisions of the marketing law can only be applied after conviction in court on charge of violating a department order established after hearings such as we are to hold."

The authority of the Wisconsin department of markets is said by Mr. Reis to be exactly like that of the federal trade commission, a curbing of whose power is now being urged, he said, in congress.

Recent federal legislation which sought to punish acts of unfairness that had been committed before they were defined as unfair, was held unconstitutional by the United States supreme court.

EXPERT TELLS WHAT GENOA CONFERENCE MEANS

This is the second of two articles by a recognized expert discussing the coming world economic conference at Genoa.

BY R. W. T. MASON
(Expert on International Relations)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The European nations with the United States to attend the Genoa conference for the purpose of helping Europe before Europe knows what kind of help it wants.

So much confusion reigns in the European chamber of commerce and industries among the allies themselves are developing so rapidly that Europe wishes Uncle Sam to become an international Judge Louis.

Genoa has been picked as the place for America to summon the Babe Rums of the European leagues for judgment.

But, the Europeans want to reserve the right of referring America's findings at will. Uncle Sam is desired to lay out a new kind of arbitration that will make everybody a winner and nobody a loser.

The United States has no power to enforce verdicts in European affairs. America has no more influence in Europe than any other nation. There is no such thing as American world leadership.

The United States, in an active role at Genoa, would make enemies rather than friends if it started to under the base stealing that is going on over there.

U. S. as Santa Claus

Should Uncle Sam take a shipload of gold to Genoa and pass it out to all comers, he would be unanimously popular as long as the gold lasted. But thereafter his works of adoration would be lost amid the rival ambitions of the trans-Atlantic powers.

American exports have foreseen the present European impasse ever since the signing of the Versailles treaty. British exports professed it, too. The British people are now trying to find a way out by means of a general resumption of international trade and slow recovery of prosperity all around.

This is the way nations have had to save themselves in the past. It is the way Europe eventually must take. But, America cannot force the pace over there.

America learned about the obstacles of Europe at the Washington conference, when hand arguments came up for discussion. What couldn't be done at Washington can't be done at Genoa.

"Watchful Waiting" Needed

All the United States can do is to wait until nature takes its course. That is to say, until the continental powers of Europe learn by experience how disastrous is their policy of keeping alive war enemies.

The United States is as helpless at present to do anything for Europe's general recovery as Great Britain is. If Germany and Russia were encouraged to get back their economic strength, as the Genoa conference originally intended, there would be less unemployment in America.

Germany and Russia would be able to buy more goods from the United States and Americans now live would find work to do. For that reason, America would have an important interest in the Genoa gathering if there were any hope that common sense would prevail there.

But, that hope became dim when the nationalists obtained power in France, and the imperialist leader, ex-President Poincare, became premier. The Genoa conference cannot accomplish any good purpose unless the powers attending are in agreement on the vital matter of co-operation.

France has yielded co-operation with Germany and Russia. America at Genoa would be able to do little more than explain the plain facts of political economy, which require co-operation with Germany and Russia as soon as possible. That would do no good, because France wants no economic arguments but the Rhine.

After a while, bitter experience will disillusion France. Then a real Genoa conference can be held and America can help the movement of world co-operation.

International trade will thereafter be stimulated and America's unemployment problem will begin to disappear.

Genoa is the most brilliant constellation in the sky.

IF YOU HAVE NO PEP OR ENERGY

You May Be Starving in Spite of Your Three Meals a Day

If you have no appetite, do not sleep well, are weak, run down, listless, no energy, and no ambition, it is evident that your daily food is not nourishing you.

It will interest every such person to know that the medical profession have for some time been recommending dietetic treatment for such conditions, rather than medicine, and at last science has produced STS TO NUTRI, like Tonic Tablets, which contain in a concentrated form the life-giving and strengthening elements of yeast, rice, eggs, milk, with beef, protein, insulin and iron that are lacking in our daily diet to overcome such conditions.

STS TO has been tested and approved by a well-known Professor of Physiological Chemistry at one of our leading Medical Colleges, and after months of experimenting with STS TO, he says: "In all cases of a general run-down system or in convalescence STS TO played a very important part in stimulating the appetite and increasing bodily weight. In every instance where under-nourished infants and children were given STS TO, important body-weight increases were registered."

Therefore, we feel very confident that our customers can find nothing better than STS TO for the ailments of which it is recommended.

If you feel it for one month and do not feel better in any way, we will return your money. For sale by Druggists and use it like a cold cream.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even itchy, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and discomfort. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

HOME TALENT PLAY SPLENDID SUCCESS AT LA CRESCENT

LA CRESCENT, Minn.—(Special.) The home talent play given by the young folks of La Crescent was a very successful affair. The play, "Valley Farm," a four act comedy, showed evidence of diligent work of both actors and coach, Miss Freda Welch. The first and last acts take place in Valley Farm while the second and third are laid at the Rutledge Mansion, New York. George Farrell as Silas Holcomb, owner of Valley Farm, kept the audience in a continuous state of excitement with the "green" expressions and antics of a jolly old farmer. The part of Horry, the charming daughter of Silas Holcomb, was cleverly handled by Lettie Burns, while La Verne Gittens ably supported her as the lover, Harold Rutledge, a young New Yorker.

Lucille Turnbull as Aileen Holcomb, a prim old maid, easily shocked and always waiting and looking for her dear lover, Azariah Keep, a clock maker, taken by Frank Grimsby. Who was always waiting for a chance to pop the question. Elmer Korrigan as Perry Dean, a son of the soil, Walter Hoag as David Holdreth, a New York lawyer, Florence Anderson, Isabel Farmer, niece to David Holdreth, Sue Gittens, Mrs. Rutledge, mother to Harold, Inez Schlabach as Liza Ann Tucker, harrowed and loomed but never gossiped, all handled their parts well. Marie Korrigan as a hired girl, and Frances Shannon a servant, contributed much to the merit of the play.

Well, She Did

An enterprising Jap student at one of America's inland colleges, who landed here with practically no English in his vocabulary, secured a job on a farm during vacation season. He assimilated the language readily enough and soon had a workable command of words—enough to get by with; but the feminine notes properly applicable to various domestic animals, came near proving a German. One morning he came running in very great haste to the master of the house, gasping as he ran: "Please, honorable boss, come quickly—hen-piz, she have pups!"

TELEPHONE COMPANIES OF WISCONSIN OPEN FIGHT ON WIRELESS PHONE SERVICE

MADISON, Wis.—Who controls the air?

An order issued by the Milwaukee state office of the Wisconsin Telephone company forbidding the use of their lines in Wisconsin for any connection or use with the wireless telephone has brought that question directly to the attention of the state railroad commission. It appears to be the first gun in a battle of the telephone companies of the country to suppress the rapid strides in the development of the wireless telephone.

For several months the university's large radio-phone broadcasting stations, W X M and W U A, have been making use of the university telephone lines to transmit concerts to their sending apparatus where it is broadcasted to the thousands of listeners—the invisible audience for a radius of 1,200 miles. Special material reports from the state department of markets have been phoned to the broadcasting stations to be sent by wireless telephone each noon all over the state. Now the local exchange, arising upon the orders of the state engineer of the company, has refused permission for the telephone lines to be used as an adjunct to this free broadcasting service any longer.

The question came informally before the commission when permission was asked and refused to broadcast in this manner the college music played for the junior prom at the state capital. An informal hearing was held before Commissioner L. E. Gottle. After hurried conferences with the state office the local exchange was allowed an exception and the prom music was broadcasted but it was understood that the case was made an exception and was not to serve as a precedent.

With over 500 farmers, bankers, newspapers and others receiving the market reports, weather reports and music from the university regularly free of charge, the approach of a real battle is easily seen. Advocates of the wireless telephone at the university and among the many receiving stations of the state have already lodged a protest with the railroad commission and Mr. Gottle has indicated that this question will be the subject of a formal investigation by the commission.

Advocates of the radio-phone service point out that refusal of permission to use the lines is not based upon any danger to the telephone lines nor does it "tie" the lines up for any unusual period except at rare intervals. On the other hand they say that it is easily recognized that should this order be allowed to stand that it will soon be extended so that radio reports cannot even be given to a friend via the telephone; that there is nothing to prevent such orders from being nation-wide if it has not already been done; and that as a result the telephone companies are really making a serious attempt to restrict the development of the wireless telephone.

It has been suggested that all who are making use of this wireless telephone service address the Wisconsin railroad commission urging an immediate investigation of the entire question. Officials in Madison feel that if the question is allowed to drop at this time it may serve as a precedent for an extension in the order at any time and are determined to fight for their stand.

HON. MERLIN HULL GIVES ADDRESS AT KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Literary Club Meets in Study of Education, Medicine and Science of France

SPARTA.—Special.—At the noon-day luncheon of the Kiwanis club, held last Wednesday at Hotel Sidney, the speaker for the occasion was Hon. Merlin Hull, of Black River Falls. Mr. Hull spoke on the subject of disarmament, and handled the subject in a masterly way, still confining the presentation within the bounds of an after-dinner address. Mr. Forreman told about the Northwestern's determination to reduce freight rates in interstate commerce and interstate commerce. Preliminary sketches of the new high school were on exhibition and many remained to examine them. A meeting of the board of directors was held at the close of the meeting.

Week before last the Kiwanis club celebrated the seventh anniversary of the organization of Kiwanis. Judge R. A. Richards gave a brief sketch of the history of the organization. Rev. E. E. North gave a sketch of what Kiwanis has accomplished in Sparta, showing that the spirit of friendliness, good will and the discussions of things of vital importance, had broadened the vision of the members, as they had met from week to week. The response to the roll call was a twenty word expression of what the members think of Kiwanis.

The Sparta Literary club held its last meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Beebe, and continued its study of France. Dr. Carl Beebe led in the discussion of the science, education and medicines of France, and was assisted by Dr. L. H. Prince, who spoke of the eminent French surgeon, M. Pasteur. A. J. Wash spoke of the educational system of France. After the program a social hour was enjoyed and Dr. Spence D. Beebe led in the singing of familiar songs. Altogether, it was a pleasant and profitable evening.

The young people of the Methodist church, through the Epworth League presented a musical and literary program in the church Tuesday evening. A large crowd gathered, after the Ladies' Aid society, to enjoy the program and lend their support to the work the leaguers are doing. The program consisted of music by the orchestra, "March Spirito," directed by Prof. C. D. Dostater; solo, "The Planes of Peace," Miss Ethel Hemstock; Valse Intermezzo, "Dorores," E. Hazel; reading, Miss Dorothy Grier; cornet solo, "Fantasia," C. D. Barnhouse by Prof. C. D. Dostater; duet, "I Feel Thy Blissful Presence," Rev. and Mrs. E. E. North; trio "Sextette from Lucia," Miss Thelma Melby; violin, Prof. Dostater, cornet, and piano, Miss Ardis Nolan; male quartet selection, Messrs. North, Knight, Ford and Wakeman; reading, Miss Nell E. Jones; trio, selection from Faust, trombone, Miss Lilah Sholes, cornet, Mr. Dostater, and piano, Miss Gladys Haney. The league cleared about $40 from the entertainment.

The thirty-second annual Thank Offering of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, was held at Temple Hall on Wednesday evening of last week. A banquet was served at six thirty o'clock. The decorations were in charge of Mrs. Belle Seate, and were wild grape vines from the state of Oregon. A historical sketch of the Sparta W. C. T. U., written by Mrs. Laura Gray, was read by Mrs. Lorene Hay.

The activities of the W. C. T. U. in training the children along temperance lines was recalled by Mrs. R. S. Baldwin and the paper was read by Miss Elsie Hebard, "The Temple," Miss Belle Ady. The crowning event of the evening was the burning of the redeemed stock by members present when the building was dedicated in 1905. A letter of congratulations from Dr. and Mrs. Brill was read by Mrs. Belle Seate. The present activities of the W. C. T. U. was presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Foote. Eleven jubilee members were welcomed by Mrs. Wynne Jones and Mrs. Peter George. The Thank offering was taken and the song, "Some Glad Day," was sung in closing.

A merry crowd of about forty couples went out to the county farm Thursday evening of last week and took Supp. and Mrs. Mooney by surprise. Folks came from town and from far and near in the country. The large dining room was cleared and dancing was indulged in, the music being furnished by Gustad's orchestra. At midnight a splendid supper was served. There was card playing for those who did not wish to dance and every one had a delightful time. Credit for the pleasant arrangements is given to Dr. S. A. Butler and John Chapiesky.

Mrs. P. C. Rainer delightfully entertained the young women's missionary society, and a few friends at her home on North K street Friday evening. Each guest dressed to represent some character from a book. Mrs. Leo Wakeman received first prize for the best represented book, and Mrs. J. E. Knight guessed the greatest number of characters represented. The hostess served dainty refreshments.

The Advance Club met at the home of Mrs. Paul Schaller Tuesday evening. The program was a musical one and Mrs. Schaller was assisted in arranging it by Mrs. Ward Williams. Mrs. Schaller read a paper, after which Mrs. Williams played several selections from Ethelbert Nevin's compositions, and Mrs. Schaller, accompanied by the piano, sang several Season love songs. Little Miss Ethel Williams, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Williams, rendered a group of songs, a version of "Chinese Mother Goose" lullabies. The hostess served refreshments after the program.

Mrs. Inez Herman was pleasantly surprised when a company of friends invaded her home with well-filled baskets and announced that they had come to dinner. Tables were quickly spread and about twenty-five partook of an appetizing dinner. The afternoon was spent in a social way and in the playing of games. The day was Mrs. Herrington's birthday. The guests wishing her many happy returns of the day.

The Congregational Men's Club entertained the Sunday school classes of older boys at a dinner on Tuesday evening of last week. A fine meal was prepared by the ladies auxiliary and about ninety men and boys were served. Mr. D. O. Stine of Reedsburg was the speaker of the evening. He gave a business man's impression of the value of a Christian life in business. The meeting was pleasant and profitable.

The Boy Scouts met Friday evening of last week at the city hall. The boys spent a few minutes boxing before the regular meeting opened. Nearly every boy answered "present." A letter from the scoutmaster at Tomah was read, and the financial standing of the local troop was read. Each of the boys present told of some of the good turns they had done during the week. Seely Gray gave an interesting talk on "The Things I Like Best in Scouting." Douglas McCoy spoke on "Army Life at Camp Douglas." Garth Tourville gave a talk on "Vacation on the Farm."

Mrs. Chauncey Beebe entertained at a noonday luncheon Wednesday.

The C. and B. club met Tuesday with Mrs. M. C. Brandt.

The R. N. A. Sewing circle met Friday with Mrs. Robert Tourville.

The Ron Kensington club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Blinston.

The Ladies Aid society of the Anglo church served supper in its dining room Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Robert B. McCoy entertained the Home Study club at her home on East Oak street Tuesday.

The next number of the Sparta Lyceum Course will be held February 15. The Tennessee Duo will appear for the entertainment.

February first the Royal Neighbors club met with Mrs. John Benson, Grove street.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church served its regular monthly supper Tuesday evening. A fine menu was given which every one enjoyed and a good social hour.

The Entre Nous club met Tuesday with Miss Ruth Smith at her home on Water street.

Friday afternoon, Mrs. T. I. Lawrence entertained the Guild of St. John's church.

Two loads of the Sparta high school young-folks enjoyed a sleigh ride out to the home of C. L. Fox in Leon, and spent a pleasant evening.

In conjunction with the group meeting and the quarterly conference held in Sparta last Thursday, a reception was tendered Rev. A. V. Ingham, district superintendent. The parlors of the church were tastefully decorated for the occasion. A pleasing program of music, readings, and talks was given and refreshments were served. A party of a dozen friends surprised Mrs. Avery Sutherland Friday afternoon, bringing their supper. The afternoon and evening was spent in card playing.

The last meeting of the Junior Housekeepers was held at the home of Mrs. Sidney Johnson.

The Plus Ultra Class met February 4 with Mrs. Fred Herrman. A picnic supper was served.

Mrs. Grace Baldwin Jones entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Baldwin.

Mrs. F. T. Rule entertained a company of friends Wednesday complimentary to Mrs. P. T. Lemmel, who is leaving soon for her new home in Madison.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jones entertained at four tables of five hundred Friday evening, at their home on East Main street. Mrs. J. C. Johnson carried off the first prize, and Mrs. Charles Brandt, the consolation.

Mrs. Daisy Humphrey was given a pleasant surprise party on her birthday. A picnic supper was served. Mrs. Dave Hemstock, Mrs. Dave Baldwin and Miss Olive Chadsey entertained the Polly Anna club and their husbands Thursday evening at a six thirty o'clock dinner at the home of Mrs. Hemstock. A most enjoyable time was had by all present.

The Loyal Sisters class of the Methodist church, met Friday, Feb. 5, with Mrs. Charles Doane, Montgomery street. A picnic supper was served.

Friends of Mrs. J. E. Biddison, to the number of eighteen, gave her a surprise party on Saturday to celebrate her sixtieth birthday. The guest of honor was given a number of remembrances. Refreshments were served and a general good time was had.

Mrs. Anna Sholis, 115 North Hamilton street, Madison announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Susie Thornburg, to Rex A. Browne, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Browne, North Baldwin street, Madison. Mrs. Browne is well known in Sparta being a step daughter of the late John A. Sholis, and a niece of Adolph Jacobs.

SPIDER'S EYES CHANGE COLOR

The Atlas spider, in addition to numerous little eyes, has a pair of large eyes, which the crowd compare to big lamps. When one spider was captured the big eyes were a dark brown, but suddenly they changed to bright grass green. In a few minutes, the creature, with the same deliberation, turned its eyes from grass green to dark brown. It repeated the change several times in succession. Apparently they were under control of the will. To all appearances it seemed to take pride in showing off its strange power. At any rate it evidently enjoyed the proceedings. It was as if a veil—new of green, now of dark brown—diffused itself from above downward behind the corner. The color of either or of both eyes could be thus changed. Other spiders of the same sort act in like manner.

Get at the Real Cause—Take
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Establishment of an international commission to investigate the Chile judicial system with a view to abolition of extra territorial rights.

Authorization for a consultation between foreign diplomats and Chinese officials at Peking with a view to withdrawal of foreign troops from China.

Relinquishment to China of unauthorized foreign radio stations on Chinese soil.

Agreement to exchange full information among the nations regarding all international commitments that affect China.

Creation of a board of reference to consider cases arising under the open door and railway provisions of the general far eastern treaty.

Convening of a special commission of the five powers to meet in the near future and consider rules to govern the use of new agencies of warfare.

Recommendation that "better protection" be given the Chinese eastern railway.

Request on the part of the powers that China reduce her military forces.

Supplementary agreement to the naval limitation treaty declaring the nations "in honor bound" not to dispose of ships which are listed for scrapping before the treaty is ratified.

Supplementary agreement to a four power Pacific treaty excluding the islands of Japan's home-land from the treaty provisions.

Japs to Leave Siberia

Of the "declarations" made by the various delegations and formally signed on the records of the conference, chief interest attached to those relating to Siberia and the "21 demands." Regarding Siberia, Japan, disavowed any territorial designs on Russia and pledged herself to withdraw her troops from Siberia, as soon as stable conditions warrant. While the United States asserted its hope that withdrawal would not be long delayed, former "21 demands" of the "21 demands" was abandoned by Japan, along with other concessions relating to economic and political conditions in Manchuria and Mongolia, China filed a protest against the remaining portions of the "demands" and the United States reiterated its intention not to recognize any of them which might infringe American rights. The British declaration of readiness to withdraw from the leased territory of Wei Hai Wei was not elaborated, but will be taken up in diplomatic exchanges between London and Peking. As a supplement to the far eastern treaty China declared her intention not to alienate any additional portions of her territory and as a supplement to the tariff treaty she agreed to retain the present maritime customs system. In two supplements to the radio resolution China declared she recognized no right to install foreign radio plants with other express consent and the powers other than China declared that in future wireless discloses the open door policy must be applied.

CERTRUDE WRIGHT BECOMES BRIDE OF ELMER HALDERSON

Mrs. George Moore Gives Dinner in Compliment to Her Husband's Birthday

CRENSHAW, Wis.—(Special)—Mrs. George Wright and Elmer E. Halderson were married January 21st in Winona. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist parsonage on Main street at six o'clock in the evening by the Rev. Samuel Parish. Mrs. Parish and Mrs. Stuckney were the witnesses. The bride and bridegroom are well known residents of Crenshaw. Mr. Halderson recently returned from Texas after an absence of several months.

Mrs. George Moore entertained at six o'clock dinner Monday evening in honor of her husband's seventy-eighth birthday. Guests were Messrs. and Mesdames L. M. Pittenger, C. S. Ford, William Cress and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Boardley and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fern Hare Friday at dinner.

Miss Berg, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Raymond, left for Helena, Mont., Saturday evening.

Charles Holmes left Tuesday for his home in Superior after a few days' visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Holmes.

Mrs. Agnes Anderson of Seattle, Wash., was a guest of Mrs. Lucy Odeh Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Charlotte and Aniline Nichols had as guests at luncheon Sunday Miss Giles, Dorothy Harwell, Margie Wakefield, Elva Jackson, and Gertie McKee and Floyd Koster.

Miss Lambert, of Independence, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Holmes Friday.

Mrs. Silas Crain and daughter, of Centerville, are guests of Mrs. Elmer Halderson.

The Social Club gave one of its social gatherings at the school house in South street Friday evening.

Messrs. and Mesdames John Towne, L. E. Putnam, H. L. Sparling, Carl Garber, Ray Trowbridge, Charles Maxwell and families and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gibson of La Crosse were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lora Atwood at dinner Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gower were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thomas Sunday at dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gibbs and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hare at six o'clock dinner.

Miss Mae Thomas and Mrs. H. Sparling were guests at a bridge party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Sparling at La Crosse Wednesday.

A very interesting meeting was held at the Methodist church Friday afternoon. Dr. E. C. Dixon, Rev. J. H. Benson and Rev. A. C. Graham of La Crosse, and Dr. W. T. Walker of Oshkosh were the out-of-town speakers.

The Ways and Means society of the Congregational church will hold its annual meeting Wednesday, February 14th. All members and helpers and their families are invited. A picnic supper will be served. Members are requested to be present at two thirty for election of officers.

Elmer Barlow, of Arcadia, and L. S. Sanders were in Winona on business Saturday.

Paul Lehman was a Sunday guest of his sister at Decorah, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gower had as guests at dinner Tuesday evening, Glen Gower and Mr. Holbrook, of La Crosse and Aniline, Carroll and Charlotte Nicholls.

Glen Gower left Thursday for Madison where he will enter the university.

Origin of "Emerald"

The Greeks adopted the word "emerald" and it seems to have had no other significance to them than to us, being merely the name by which one might identify a particular stone.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "gentle" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, nervous, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

THE DEAD PONTIFF AND HIS SUCCESSOR

Civil and ecclesiastical dignitaries paying homage at the bier of the late Pope Benedict XV as the pontiff's body lies in state at the Vatican, Rome. The body rests on a large catafalque, surrounded by huge candlesticks. This view was taken through a large doorway opening into the death chamber through which Roman crowds viewed his holiness' body.

New Pope Said To Be a Man of Liberal Views

Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, was for several years past much in Poland where his discharge of important ecclesiastical functions when the Polish question became acute earned for him the esteem of Benedict XV and the gratitude of various authorities. It was because of this service that the red hat was conferred upon him on June 16, 1921, when a similar honor was bestowed on Cardinal Laurenti.

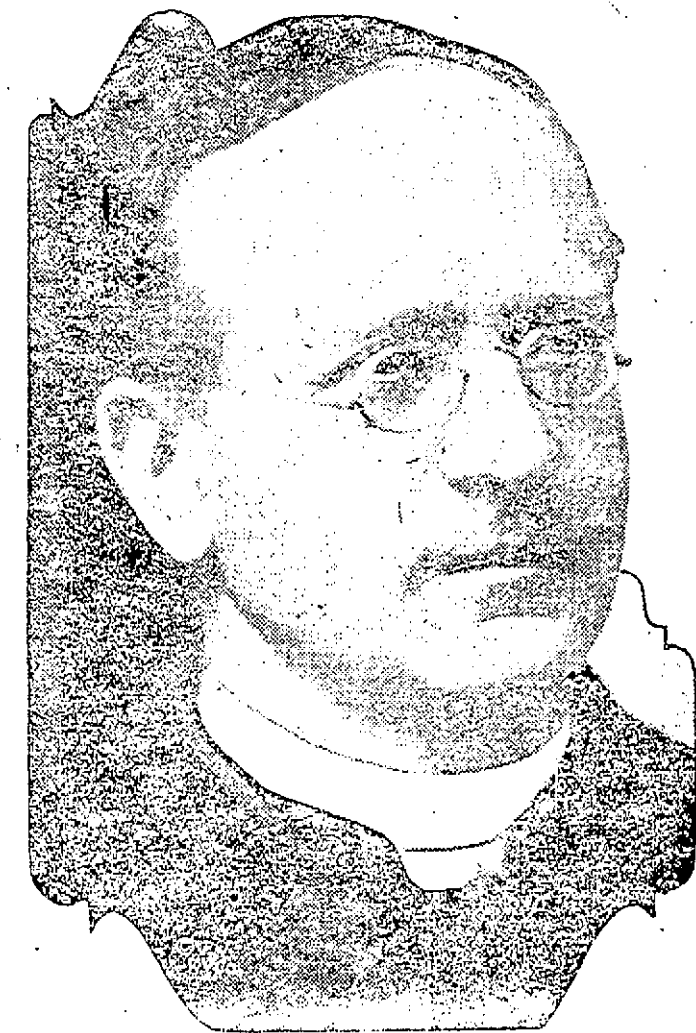

Cardinal Ratti was born in Italy on March 31, 1857. For many years he was librarian of the Ambrosian library and archivist at Milan. Later he became librarian of the Vatican. In this position he remained until the new republic of Poland established official diplomatic relations with the Vatican at which time Ratti was appointed archbishop and was assigned to Poland as the representative of the Holy See.

That country was then torn with the estrangements from religion brought about by the communistic propaganda from soviet Russia and Archbishop Ratti counteracted the spread of materialism. He also won the esteem of Polish Catholics by his efforts in behalf of destitute children orphaned by the war.

Cardinal Ratti as the archbishop of Milan presided over one of the most important archdioceses in Italy. The city being a great industrial center, one of its main requirements is that the Cardinal shall possess a thorough knowledge of political and social problems. He is big physically and is reputed to have liberal tendencies.

FARMERS' DAY IS HELD IN VERNON COUNTY FRIDAY

VIROQUA, Wis.—The second annual Vernon county farmers' day was held here on Friday under the auspices of the Agricultural club. G. W. Fehrand of the state board of vocational education, addressed the parents of rural boys and girls. Mr. Hubbard of the University of Wisconsin spoke on "Marketing Farm Products." Charles B. Jantors also of Madison, employed by the state bank commission, gave an instructive talk and a speaker from Milwaukee, from the farm loan office, explained "How the Farmer Can Borrow Money from the Government." The meeting was largely attended.

KATHLEEN MAKES HER BOW TO THE PUBLIC TUESDAY

V. W. C. A. Show to be Presented With Cast of Two Hundred

"Kathleen," the production "that's different," will make its bow to the La Crosse public at La Crosse theater Tuesday evening, the play to be presented again on Wednesday evening. The production is sponsored by the V. W. C. A., and scores of association girls are taking part in the choruses and dancing numbers and as principals. The cast includes 200 of the best amateur talent in the city.

Others in the cast are Miss Coleste Hingelow, and Messrs. Roy Christenson, George Marshall, Harold Oyen, and Frederick Hanksen.

The story of the play concerns itself with the love affairs of Kathleen O'Day, played by Miss Calverna Lince, forced by an uncle to give her hand to a rich man's son while her preference rests with a poor grocery clerk, and while the course of true love meets many obstacles the final curtain finds everybody happy.

Leon Henry takes the part of the poor man, while Gordon Kerr plays Ned Bolington, the sister favored by Kathleen's uncle. Miss Margaret Thurman as Arabella, and Clyde Russell, as Lem Tedoruck, the village marshal, provide a fund of rich humor to the production.

In the chorus numbers, participated in by handsome girls, handsomely costumed, features include the Tennis girls, By-Heck girls, the Lassies and Shy-mails. Dance-O-Mania, (two girls), Waltz Middy and Right Tied numbers, and the Dream Kiddies. Song numbers include Kathleen, Every Road is the Road, Child, head Drama, Love Letter, Boat, Began, Arabella, The Advocate, and Town Tennis.

CALLED HER THE "PERFECT WIFE"

LONDON.—Mrs. William Bedford, Glusier, wife of a late London lawyer, is the Perfect Wife.

Bedford himself said so in bequeathing to her the fortune he made out of the matrimonial troubles of other couples.

And Bedford ought to know. He was married to her for 13 years and knew her 16 years before that.

Said Bedford: "We have never quarreled. No untold words have passed between us. No better woman ever lived."

Says Mrs. Bedford: "My husband—my greatest joy."

MORE LA CROSSE MADE GOODS TO BE SOLD IN CITY

Retailers and Manufacturers and Jobbers Have Profitable Meeting

Working to obtain closer co-operation between merchants, jobbers and manufacturers in La Crosse to the end that more home-made goods may be sold in local stores, 61 representatives of local institutions held an interesting and profitable meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Friday night.

"As a result of this meeting," said J. J. Fuller, president of the Chamber of Commerce, "retailers, jobbers and manufacturers are closer together than ever before in the history of this city."

While no definite plan of operation was decided upon, a mutual understanding which, it is believed, will result in manufacturers and jobbers obtaining better patronage from retailers for goods made and handled here, was reached.

GALESVILLE RINKS WELCOME PLANS OF LOCAL ENTHUSIASTS

Anxiously Await Matches With Local Curriers in New Building Here

Regarding the organization of a curling club here and the construction of the new curling shed now under way, Theodore M. Skarseth, curling enthusiast of Galesville writes:

The announcement in Wednesday's issue of your paper that the La Crosse curling club will have enclosed rinks ready to curl on within ten days, was hailed with much pleasure by members of the Galesville curling club. It has been the desire of our club to have had several La Crosse curling enthusiasts with us on several occasions and it was always a pleasure to witness the enthusiasm and interest that they took in that grand old game of curling. I wish to state here that the organization of a curling club and equipment of an enclosed building will do much more to make La Crosse's annual carnival a success than any of the other events of this newly organized curling club are aware of. It will mean the holding of a west Wisconsin curling week of their curling and while this event will not add great numbers to their carnival, it will add a sport and interest that will become more popular each year. It will draw curling teams from all over the state and also from the twin cities where the game of curling is by far the most popular of any out of doors games. I can vouch for the statement that the La Crosse curlers will have all the competition they care for from the Galesville curling club and I am patiently awaiting for the day when either Arthur Dethlefsen, Charles Coss, Harry Watkins or Dr. Marshall calls us up and invites us to come down to La Crosse and help in dedicating their new curling home. Here's hoping it will be this winter.

Yours very truly, a subscriber and reader of your paper for the past 20 years and also a curling enthusiast for the same number of years.
THEO. M. SKARSETH,
Galesville, Wis.

A DANGEROUS PROPOSITION

The confeder in the village school room had invited one man from the audience to step up on the platform, and a youth had responded. "Now, friend," said the confeder, "I suppose you consider it a matter of impossibility for me to make the rabbit in that box on the table pass into your coat pocket?" "Yes," replied the youth, "but I wouldn't do it if I were you, sir." "Oh, you'll be in no danger, I can assure you," said the sight of hand man slyly. "I wasn't thinking about myself," the youth answered calmly. "I was thinking of the rabbit. I've got a couple of ferrets in my pocket," Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL BEATEN BY TOMAH SATURDAY EVENING

Unfamiliarity With Small Floor
Handicaps La Crosse Men in Working Plays

The La Crosse high tossers unexpectedly met defeat at the hands of the Tomah high generation Saturday night on the Tomah floor, 25 to 22, the second defeat of the season for La Crosse. This was the first time in years that Tomah won the county. Although the local's passing was erratic they outplayed the Tomahs in floor work. La Crosse was handicapped by their unfamiliarity with the small floor, as Koshan's offense is not one to be worked on a small floor, the execution of plays was impossible. La Crosse's defense, however, prohibited any short shooting. Tomah made all their points by long shots from the middle of the floor. Finding led in scoring for Tomah, while La Crosse's points were evenly divided. Hargett made good 8 out of 10 free throws and North of Tomah 5 out of 6. Thompson of Tomah was taken out for four personal fouls. Halley was charged up with three personals. Thompson made one field goal, Hargett six, and North two. Westcott sank two field goals for La Crosse. Hargett two, Halley two, Koshan one and Tubins one.

The lineup:
Tomah—Thompson, F. Herman, F. Fleming, G. Smith, G. North, G. Sals—Madden and Blackwell.
La Crosse—Wiegman, G. Koshan, F. Hargett, G. Halley, G. Tubins, G. Sals—Jesch for Koshan; Alenham for Tubins.

CHURCH ATHLETIC LEAGUE BOWLING

The Caledonia Street Methodists won two out of three from the First Presbyterians in the church athletic league. The First Presbyterians, English Lutherans and Congregationalists won three straight from the North Presbyterians, First Methodists and West Avenue Methodists. The scores:

BASEBALL PIONEER PLAYS GOLF AT AGE OF SEVENTY-SIX

SAN FRANCISCO.—George Wright of Boston, one of the pioneer stars of baseball, who is visiting at Belmont, Cal., celebrated his 76th birthday several days ago by playing the season's golf course at Pebble Beach, near Belmont, in 32, a score most golfers and his age would be proud to equal. Back in the years when the game of baseball was just taking hold, Wright managed the Cincinnati Reds and one season, it is said, made eighty home runs. One year his team played its entire schedule without being defeated. Wright has been given credit for creating the position of shortstop.

Wright, who for years has been in the sporting goods business, in 1880 brought to Boston what was said to have been the first set of golf clubs and balls ever seen in America. A Scotchman of Boston used the equipment on an empty lot, there being no golf courses at that time.

USING MY HEAD WON ME HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE SAYS CHAMPION STAN ZBYSZKO

BY BILLY EVANS

"Using my head won me the wrestling championship and is helping me retain it," is the way Stanislaus Zbyszko explains his victory over Strangler Lewis.

On the surface one would take that statement to mean that Zbyszko outsmarted Lewis. In a measure he did, but Zbyszko when he made assertion that his head did the business was speaking from an entirely different angle.

The headlock is the favorite hold of Strangler Lewis. When all other holds have failed him, Lewis has always been able to bring a hook to an end through the medium of the headlock.

In order to clamp the headlock on an opponent it is necessary that he have a neck and the ordinary style head. In that respect Zbyszko differs from almost any other wrestler in the world.

In the parlance of the wrestling game, Zbyszko has what is known as a natural "turtle draw" or disappearing neck. When Lewis sought to apply the headlock to Zbyszko, he merely initiated the turtle and gave Lewis little to work on.

Two other conditions enter into the scheme. Zbyszko is bald-headed. He boasts of a few more hairs than pictured in some of the hair tonic ads, but these he keeps closely cropped. His head closely resembles the ivory ball, except as to its contents. Zbyszko has brains.

"HAIL THE WOMAN—RIVOLI
The inspired story of modern womanhood is told in a deeply emotional and dramatic vein in "Hail the Woman," Thomas H. Ince's enthralling picture of life, now being featured at the Rivoli Theatre.

The picture demonstrates clearly the life, as rich and thrilling as the life of the minstrel of old, is found in every-day happenings of modern life. The play is a mental stimulant, a succession of powerful situations, interpreted by a brilliant cast of highly talented and universally popular screen players.

The role of Judith Beresford, divorced "Woman" of the play, is interpreted by Florence Vidor, who has fully grasped the dramatic spirit of the story, and gives to its expression the best that is in her. Her characterization is powerful and worthy in every respect of the great and immortal theme.

Madge Bellamy, as the tragic, pitiful figure of Nan, the symbolization of betrayed and deserted womanhood, achieves heights of expressive portrayal that stamp her a great tragic figure.

Lloyd Hughes only acquits himself of a difficult task in portraying the weak character of David Beresford, who has severely married Nan, but lacks courage to face his father and disclose the fact of his marriage. As a result, Nan's life is ruined.

A splendidly virile characterization is that which Theodore Roberts gives to the role of Oliver Beresford, the stern old Puritan who rules his family with a hand of iron.

Tully Marshall makes a powerful impression on the audience in his vivid interpretation of the part of the vicious and covetous "old-job" man, who is bribed by Oliver Beresford to drive his step-daughter, Nan, away.

NEW MAJESTIC POLICY

The Majestic opens its new enlarged vaudeville policy today with five classic featuring Follette, Pearl and Wicks in a humorous skit called "The Coal Driver." Four other Orpheum acts are on the bill, making up a program replete with good comedy and music. For pictures there is Pauline Starke in "Salvation Nell."

Out of the depths of New York's East Side comes this screen story of fascinating character and striking realism. Pauline Starke, in the title role, reveals herself as a wonderful actress portraying a strong dramatic and emotional part.

She is seen as the forlorn little Nell who, discharged from a sweatshop, gets a position in the harem of a rich Chinese man. Because of her love for the saltwater, but hard drinking Jim Platt, she is driven to a still lower level, becoming a saloon scrubwoman. Then the Salvation Army claims her and her true character triumphs. The great dramatic moment in this photoplay comes when she effects the salvation of Jim.

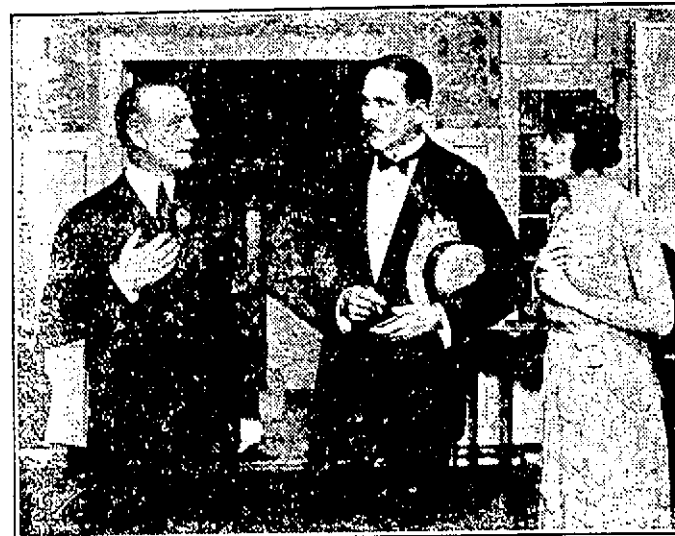

PAULINE FREDERICK—RIVIERA

Pauline Frederick as the charming daughter of a rear admiral and who becomes a mysterious keeper of an inn on an island in the South Seas because a series of tragic events have made her an outcast, gives one of the most brilliant performances of her career in "The Lure of Jade." This production, distributed by R-C Pictures, and written for the screen by Marion Orth is rich in the atmosphere of the South Seas, which makes it particularly timely in view of the fact that South

SESSUE HAYAKAWA—CASINO

"The Swamp," Sessue Hayakawa's latest R-C Pictures Corporation production, adapted from his own original story, is rich in humor as well as pathos and will furnish many a laugh for local theatergoers when it is screened at the Casino today and Tuesday.

Hayakawa takes a marked departure from his intensely dramatic roles of the past and plays the part of the simple Chinese boy, who earns his living selling vegetables, with a deft touch of comedy that will captivate all those who see it. And let it be stated here and now that the noted Japanese-American star is just as skillful a comedian as he is a tragedian. "The Swamp" differs from anything Mr. Hayakawa has ever played and his role is so sympathetic, so tinged with sadness and so poignantly real that it is bound to be one of the outstanding characterizations of the year. Realizing the importance of having the best possible cast to support him, Mr. Hayakawa sent a copy of the play to Miss Bessie Love and asked her if she would play the leading feminine role, notwithstanding the fact that

Miss Love is a star in her own right and has her own production company.

WE NEED DUST

Most people regard dust as a nuisance which has to be endured. The atmosphere is full of tiny particles, which can easily be seen in the rays of sunshine penetrating the most carefully kept room. These particles collect heat from the rays of the sun, which would otherwise pass right through clear air without warming it, and so they help to make the temperature agreeable. Without dust, we should have no soil, for if rocks had never been ground to powder, the earth would still be solid. Lichen dust, which is light enough to travel on the breeze, is the beginning of all new forms of vegetation; and without pollen dust plants would not be fertilized. Dust makes invisible things visible. Dust steam in a glass vessel absolutely free from dust and you will not see it. Even the clouds themselves could not be seen were there no dust. In the absence of dust, the atmospheric moisture would condense on the trees, the grass, the ground, ourselves, in fact everywhere and we should live in a state of perpetual humidity.

The first separate school for colored children in Massachusetts was established in 1788.

GOLD IN KEEL AND COPPER IN HULK

The historic frigate the "Granite State" made a spectacular configuration on the New York waterfront a year or two ago and the hulk sank in the berth where she had been tied up. She was auctioned off and five thousand dollars was bid for her by a salvaging company. For a long time the work of getting her ready for raising has been going on, conducted by several divers who have made the hulk nearly water tight and she will be raised and towed to some point where it will be convenient to burn her for the metal that is in her. There are tons of copper which will make it worth while and in addition to this there are three golden spikes which were driven in the keel by the governors of three states at the time that work on the craft was commenced. These spikes are said to be of solid gold and weigh two pounds each.

Surrender? Never!

"Why don't you get rid of that horse if he's so vicious?" asked one farmer of another.
"Well, you see, Jim," replied the other, "I have to give in. If I was to sell that horse, he'd regard it as a personal victory. He's been trying for the last six years to get rid of me!" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.
